Education and nationalism: the discourse of education

This chapter explores the project of nation building that has lain at the heart of India's educational policy since 1947. Between the conflicting claims of the English speaking intelligentsia and the proponents of Hindi, the secularists and the revisionist Hindu state governments, the urban middle class and the newly powerful rural elite, education has been the site of multiple definitions of the nation.

Classical nationalism is the political program that sees the creation and maintenance of a fully sovereign state owned by a given ethno-national group (â€œpeopleâ€• or â€œnationâ€•) as a primary duty of each member of the group. Starting from the assumption that the appropriate (or â€œnaturalâ€•) unit of culture is an ethno-nation, it claims that a primary duty of each member is to abide by one's recognizably ethno-national culture in all cultural matters.
