

signal processing and linear pdf

Signal processing is a subfield of mathematics, information and electrical engineering that concerns the analysis, synthesis, and modification of signals, which are broadly defined as functions conveying "information about the behavior or attributes of some phenomenon", such as sound, images, and biological measurements. For example, signal processing techniques are used to improve signal ...

The most common processing approach in the time or space domain is enhancement of the input signal through a method called filtering. Digital filtering generally consists of some linear transformation of a number of surrounding samples around the current sample of the input or output signal. There are various ways to characterize filters; for example:

Figure 8.2 shows schematically the result of convolving two zero-padded signals and . In this case, the signal starts some time after , say at . Since begins at time 0, the output starts promptly at time , but it takes some time to "ramp up" to full amplitude. (This is the transient response of the FIR filter.) If the length of is , then the transient response is finished at time .
